COVER LETTER

To Whom It May Concern,

I'm looking for my next challenge - ideally with a team that values human communication over corporate jargon.

Over the past 10+ years, I've built a career bridging the gap between engineering teams, business strategy, and creative execution. What drives me is pretty simple: people, creativity, and technology. I pride myself on being an empathetic leader who focuses on team culture and removing roadblocks for top talent - because happy developers, designers and writers actually build better things.

Thanks to a hybrid background, I am just as comfortable managing complex project roadmaps as I am rolling up my sleeves to design multimedia assets or to write technical documents.

My most recent role was cut short due to a sudden corporate downsizing. While the timing was unexpected, I am stepping forward with absolute confidence in my skills and I'm happy to put you in direct touch with my previous managers, who will gladly confirm that I'm great to work with.

I'm looking for a place where I can take ownership, learn quickly, and help a team thrive without having to check my personality at the door. If you need someone to streamline your technical operations, guide a team of writers, or drive creative media projects, I'd love to chat.
